Albemarle to name Brian Tessin vice president, tax & chief tax counsel

June 1, 2016

CHARLOTTE, N.C., June 1, 2016 /PRNewswire/ -- Albemarle Corporation (NYSE: ALB), a leader in the global specialty chemicals industry, announced today that Brian Tessin will be joining the company as vice president, tax & chief tax counsel, reporting to Scott Tozier, chief financial officer. In this role, Tessin will be responsible for overall leadership of the company's global tax organization, including the design and implementation of a global tax policy and strategy.

Tessin is a seasoned tax executive with over 23 years of industry and public accounting experience. He has been employed by Dow Corning Corporation for the last 19 years and serves as the company's corporate vice president, tax. Additionally, he has been heavily involved in the ownership restructuring transaction between The Dow Chemical Company and Corning Inc., which was announced earlier today, June 1, 2016.

"We are pleased that Brian will be joining Albemarle's corporate finance team," said Tozier. "We are excited about the contribution his background and expertise will afford the company as we move forward."

Tessin will join the company by September 2016 and succeed Richard Fishman, Albemarle's vice president, tax & chief tax counsel, who will retire at the end of this year.

Expressing gratitude for Fishman’s service, Tozier said, “During his 10 years of dedicated service, Rich made invaluable contributions to Albemarle’s success, growth and shareholder value. His committed leadership of the tax and treasury organizations endeared him to both his team and the entire Albemarle family."
